EXPLAINS HIS FARMING IDEA

With controversial war news that an officers school couldn't figure out reaching the paper, and sensational arson cases and alleged blind tiger developments taking place from time to time to say nothing of the boll weevil situation and bollagra, it is no wonder that news writers sometimes get their stories mixed.

"Growing Into" Diversification.
"In yesterday's Eagle I am quoted in the talk that I made at Selma church, Saturday, as having urged each farmer in a community to plant, say, 100 acres in other crops than cotton. Although this is an error on the face of it, for we have so many farms in Houston county which are less than 100 acres, I would thank you to correct it. What I urged was that each farmer in a community plant, say, one acre in some crop other than cotton, so that the combined product of the community could be marketed in earloads, and thus save freight. Our people know cotton, and, of course, it is unwise to make a radical change, and my remarks were offered in the hope of bringing about a 'growing into' diversification rather than a 'going into' diversification at wholesale. A small acreage in other money crops and more attention given to cattle and hog raising will put our agricultural population in much better financial shape than they are today."

Dothan Mother Writes Letter On Recent Events

Makes Earnest Plea That Something Be Done to Save Dothan From Crime and Lawlessness.

Editor Dothan Eagle:
I have been watching with anxiety and concern, the trend of recent events in our city, events which culminated in the burning of the Methodist parsonage.

I have asked myself many times recently, can this continue? I do not believe it, it is impossible, unthinkable.

The issue is clear and well defined. On the one side—law, order, Christianity, civilization;—on the other—lawlessness, crime, theft, arson and murder. This situation cannot continue, the issue must be settled now, and settled right, or Dothan can no longer be a place for decent, law-abiding people to live. It must be cleansed of these hideous defects or turned over to the blind tiger, the ruffian, the midnight assassin with his torch and kerosene can.

Men of Dothan, you belong to a race which has never submitted to tyranny. In your veins flows the blood of the Anglo-Saxon, a race of men which has never failed to meet every crisis, and merge triumphant from every battle with evil and crime. In this crucial hour, when the destiny of Dothan is trembling in the balance, we—the women of

Negro Is Shot By Officer Horusby

A negro was shot in the vicinity of the Coast Line station this morning by Officer Ross Horusby, and is reported dangerously wounded, the shot entering the lower part of the body. The negro, who was taken to the county jail, is said to be a hobo. Officer Horusby, it is understood, says he placed the negro under arrest and that the prisoner made an effort as if he was going to draw a knife or revolver, the officer then firing. The negro died this afternoon.

AIRBORNE MAKING IMPROVEMENTS

There will be an opening all around the building, just below the eaves so as to make it cool during the hot weather, and will have a canvas over it in the winter.

Police Arrest Man On Theft Charge

After he had bought a ticket to Thomasville, Ga., and while he was waiting to catch a train, a man whom the police say is named Culbreth, of Madrid, was arrested at the Atlantic Coast Line passenger station this morning by Chief of Police C. J. Rollins.

It seems that the police department had information that about $50 had been stolen from a man near Malvern, and that the party said to have committed the alleged theft, would probably come to Dothan. Police officers made a quick investigation, going to different parts of the city, and were eventually successful in landing their man. He had $40.00 which was thought to have been the balance of the stolen money. The prisoner, while in a cell at the police station, looked as if he was under the influence of whiskey. He told Police Officer Spivey and a newspaper man that he was John Pennington, of Hodgesville, but some of the police said they knew him of old and that his name was Culbreth. The prisoner was delivered to Deputy Sykes of Geneva county, who announced his intention of leaving on the next train for Geneva.

INSURING ACCURATE NEWS.

Birmingham Age-Herald
The announcement of Winston Spencer Churchill, first lord of the admiralty, that the British government has decided to establish a press bureau, provided over by a member of Parliament, from which will be issued trustworthy news, regarding both the admiralty and the war office, should cause general satisfaction. With communication cut off in many places, the cables clogged, mail service demoralized and strict censorship in force, among the belligerents, it is extremely difficult to get accurate accounts of what is going on. Newspapers have been with the wildest reports, which have later been proved without any foundation. Excitable individuals originate all sorts of rumors and unscrupulous correspondents, being shut out from the sources of news, are putting color into their dispatches at the expense of accuracy.

The more reliable news gathering agencies are giving the news to the best of their ability, and when a positive statement is made it can be depended on as a fact. When the truth of a dispatch cannot be verified it is published as a rumor, or as hearsay, and can thus be taken at its face value. By doing this, the propagative newspapers avoid the blindness of the 'yellow' journals which publish one extra after another and make a tremendous racket one day over a piece of news which the next day is found to be a myth.

The public should not lose faith in the newspapers, because they are just now under a tremendous handicap in getting the news. Naturally when two or more nations are at war they don't want their plans and movements made public. The due publicity would prove disastrous. The salient details of the struggle in Europe are bound to come out and trustworthy newspapers will not fail to make these details known just as soon as they are substantiated. Several prominent newspapers in the country have already announced that they will not print extras without good reason to do so, an example that will probably be followed.

A LESSON FROM THE MIND.

Atlanta Constitution

With health and strength and light to see the way with the joy of life in the world and thrilling all around them, rich and poor pause in valleys of shadows to enumerate their troubles. To such we commend the lesson in this little story from the Concordia Kansas

'Fred Willard who has been blind since childhood came into the Kansas office the other day and we joyfully said: Well what do you want now? to which he replied: don't want anything. I just came to tell you that every thing is going just to suit me exactly, and I am having everything I want—everything is all right.'

There spoke the optimist the real world has been looking for his life at once a rebuke and a blessing. It is I don't want anything. Every thing is all right.'

Take that text home. It preaches its own sermon. Worry of war, of want, grief for the present fear of the future, sorrow for his blindness—none of these in this blind man's philosophy. And, wanting nothing he has All.

Thus the blind lead the blind to higher life and thought. The man walking through life with eyes shut to its beauty, making their own crosses, seeking for thorns in our bright flowery places may learn of this blind philosopher who makes a blessing of his burden, and counts it no burden at all.

THE BASIS OF CRIME.

Commercial Appeal

According to Dr. Paul E. Bowers, physician in charge of the Indiana State Penitentiary, the basis of habitual criminality is disease.

This is not a new theory. The crime doctor is no longer a figure of fiction. Neurologists have been predicting that some day institutions will be established for the medical and surgical treatment of criminals. Some may be cured. Some may be in hopeless condition and beyond the aid of science. This is true of diseases of all kinds.

The majority of criminals retained to the state institution, according to Dr. Bowers, for the second and third time, are below par mentally and physically. The ailments of degeneracy are written all over them. Of the so-called unruly prisoners who repeatedly violate the rules of the penitentiary, eighty-five per cent, he declares, are mentally unbalanced.

Men of healthy minds and healthy bodies sometimes commit crime. They are not criminals at heart. The best balanced man in the white heat of passion may kill. It is never or very rarely a premeditated murder. It is the result of a temporarily deranged mind the result of some great mental shock. The doctor does not intend to imply that all prisoners and all criminals are degenerates, weak mentally and physically. His diagnosis applies to the veteran in vice the habitual offender.

The work of treating such subjects must begin naturally with the removal of the disease with which they suffer. Get at the root of the evil. Mere imprisonment does not relieve cause of crime. The crusty doctor in treating a patient makes his diagnosis finds the direct cause of trouble and proceeds to start at the foundation of the sickness.

Dr. Bowers is undoubtedly right. If disease is the responsible cause of habitual criminality the cause should be treated and removed. After the physical defects have been corrected the patients should be put through a course of mental training to wean them from old habits. They must be held in a correct environment until their character is reformed.

The conclusions reached by Dr. Bowers are similar to the conclusions of eminent British and German criminologists who have given the subject the closest and most conscientious study. These scientific investigations do not hold much hope for the habitual criminal but some may be cured.

It is manifestly impossible to reverse the present prison system but scientific applications of the new theory may hold much benefit in store for the future.

THE BANKERS WILL TAKE CARE OF THE COTTON CROP.

Birmingham News

There is no doubt that the bankers of the South have the spirit and the patriotism, as well as the business sagacity and nerve to stand shoulder to shoulder with the Southern farmers in taking proper care of the South's great international crop. Here is an example in the form of a notice issued by the four banks of Thomaston Ga.

The undersigned banks of Thomaston realizing that it will be difficult to sell cotton on account of the disturbed condition of business resulting from the war in Europe have agreed to advance to farmers about half the value or not exceeding six cents per pound on cotton stored in warehouses and insured.

In all probability bankers all over the South have already in their own minds resolved on similar action though not many of them have gotten together and issued a formal notice like those of Thomaston have done. The same result is going to follow everywhere. No farmer is going to be forced to sacrifice his cotton. He can get an advance on it that will enable him to pay his debts and to have spending money for buying his Fall and Winter supplies of various kinds.

It is also very plain that the Treasury Department at Washington is going to back up the Southern bankers in this important undertaking. There will soon be an abundance of currency for all proper purposes, through the operation of the emergency currency act and also through the new banking system, which the Federal Reserve Board will quickly inaugurate.

DEEP PLOWING.

From Hoard's Dairyman.
An Illinois friend writes us to ask why we think it necessary to go to the expense of buying a special machine and the use of four-horse power to plow our land 12 inches deep. He also asks if we have not yet seen any drawbacks to that policy. There are many reasons which led us finally from merely thinking it over to doing the thing. We will enumerate some of the most important.

1. To break up the plow-pack six inches below the surface which had been formed by over a half century of shallow plowing, and which we found impossible with the ordinary plow. This "plow-pack" prevented the moisture from going down in heavy rains; also prevented the crop roots from natural extension which they should have.

2. There was a large amount of inert fertility in that stiff subsoil that only needed to be broken up, mixed with the upper soil, and the air allowed to circulate through it to become at once available for the growing of crops.

3. Deep plowing provided for storage of excess water in time of heavy rains and lessened the liability to gullying and the washing off of the surface soil.

4. In times of severe drought this broken up subsoil acts as a sponge to hold the moisture that is pouring up from the lower earth at the rate, at times, of a fair rainfall a day. If you cannot give your crops the water they need from a downpour of moisture, you can in this make use of the up-pour that is constantly rising by evaporation.

5. Deep plowing greatly increases crumb-structure of the soil, as Professor King calls it in his book on "Soil Management." That means that you have changed the texture of the subsoil, made it more mellow, broken up its solid, pasty condition, thus enabling the roots and root hairs to range more freely through it and derive increased nourishment.

6. Deep plowing of stiff subsoils is beneficial in times of excessive rains as well as in severe drought. You will notice that in the appearance especially of corn, clover, and alfalfa.

When you come afterward to plow in the ordinary manner you will notice a great change in the ease of plowing in the loose, mellow condition of your land. We believe it will pay richly on clay loam soils to give it one plowing twelve to sixteen inches in depth. Our first trial was three years ago and its good effects are shown yet. How often this should be done remains yet to be seen.

We have not observed any ill effects. The crop of corn, barley and alfalfa on the deep plowed portions of the farm have been manifestly superior to those grown on the land plowed from six to eight inches deep. It is hard to escape from the conviction such a fact gives.

We have recently secured the sole agency in Dothan for two more large Fire Companies and are better prepared than ever to take care of your account. We offer you the services of The Royal of Liverpool, The Royal Exchange Insurance of London, The Scottish Union and National of Edinburgh, The Glen Falls of New York, The Girard of Philadelphia. BOROUGH INVESTIGATION OF BOLL WEEVIL UNDERTAKEN

The most complete investigation of the boll weevil problem that is ever been made in the South, is being undertaken by G. H. Alford, of Mississippi, in charge of northern demonstration farms for the Agricultural Extension Department of the International Harvester Company.
Mr. Alford has just arrived in the South from Chicago and his investigation will take him through Louisiana, Arkansas, Mississippi, Texas and Alabama. It will cover three altitudes, taking into consideration conditions of soil, rainfall and climate. This investigation has aroused the interest of the most prominent people of the South. Dr. Bradford Knapp of the United States Department of Agriculture, special Agent in Charge of the Farmers Co-operative Demonstration work in the South, has offered the cooperation of his department in this work. Probably no man is better informed about boll weevil conditions than Mr. Knapp. He has spent a good part of his life aiding the Southern people in combating the boll weevil and in other agricultural extension work. Mr. Alford in the work that he has outlined will have the aid and co-operation of Mr. J. A. Evans, of the United States Department of Agriculture. These two men will begin the work on August 12.

"It is our purpose," said Mr. Alford, "to learn of the extent and the results of the boll weevil damage under different conditions throughout the Cotton Belt. We will take into consideration the latitude, winter temperatures, dates of killing frosts, summer temperatures, rainfall, altitude, timber and labor conditions. Then, we can face the problem as a collective whole. The sizes of the farms, the number of tenants, and the owners of the land will be leading factors in the investigation.

"Did the farmers diversify before the boll weevil came? Do they diversify now? Did the tenants leave when the weevil came? Are the people as a whole as prosperous now as they were before the advent of the weevil? Bank deposits and general financial conditions before the boll weevil came and since it has come; importation and exportation of food for live stock, fruits and vegetables, hogs and cattle, will be important phases of the work.

"Our sole aim is to make this investigation of the greatest practical value to the farmers of the South—giving them information they want in building up their farms and making them profitable in spite of the boll weevil. This investigation is being made at the request of some of our leading farmers and business men who want the facts. I am deeply grateful to Dr. Knapp and the other members of the Department of Agriculture at Washington whose co-operation in this work is invaluable. I also appreciate the aid offered by commercial organizations, farmers and business men. We hope with this co-operation, to present the boll weevil problem as it actually exists.

"Prof. P. G. Holden, Director of our Agricultural Extension Department, is taking a keen interest in this investigation and when it is over he will publish the results."

THE MOTHER

James J. Montague in the New York American.

I hear the blaring bands go by;
I hear the marching feet;
All day they drum their dreadful dirge along the dusty street.
I hear the crowds give cheer on cheer of fierce delirious joy.
And wonder if they see him there,
my little, little boy.
A baby only yesterday, with soft
and sunny hair;
So helpless and so innocent; so fragile, and so fair.
So strong I felt to shield him then,
safe sheltered in my arm.
It seemed to me the whole wide world could never do him harm.
And, oh, the long, long nights I watched beside his trundle bed
To fight away the pain that racked his little fevered head.
I fought his battles for him then;
he leaves my side today
To fight for greater ones alone, and oh, so far away!

The little dimpled head that lay so trustingly in mine
Must grasp a rifle barrel soon along the firing line
My baby boy I held so close I felt his fluttering breath
Has left me empty-armed and gone
to see the face of death.
And never mother's voice to soothe,
nor mother's arm to shield,
From all the dreful perils of the smoke-lung battlefield!
Oh, why must mothers stay behind?
Is not a mother's place Beside the baby that must look to death's remorseless face?
The year's have wrought a change in him that only others see—
For all his soldier uniform, he's still a boy to me.
Sent forth to kill, he knows not why, a king's insensate toy,
While I must wait and pray at home
—My baby, baby, boy!

THROUGH THE YEAR

God be with you in the springtime,
When the violets unfold,
And the buttercups and cowslips
Fill the fields with yellow gold.
In the time of apple blossoms,
When the happy bluebirds sing,
Filling all the world with gladness
God be with you in the spring.
God be with you in the summer,
When the sweet June roses blow,
When the bobolinks are laughing
And the brooks with music flow,
When the fields are white with daisies
And the days are glad and long—
God be with you in the summer,
Filling all your world with song.
God be with you in the autumn,
When the birds and flowers have fled
And along the woodland pathways
Leaves are falling, gold and red
When the summer lies behind you
In the evening of the year—
God be with you in the autumn,
When to all your heart with cheer,
God be with you in the winter,

When the snow lies deep and white;
When the sleeping fields are silent
And the stars gleam cold and bright;
When the hands and hearts are tired
With life's long and weary quest,
God be with you in the winter,
Just to guide you into rest.
—Julian S. Culler.
